AWARDS RECOGNISING PEOPLE

WILLIAM PICKERING AWARD FOR ENGINEERING LEADERSHIP SPONSORED BY THE IPENZ FOUNDATION

Sir William Pickering was one of the world's most eminent engineers and the inaugural patron of the IPENZ Foundation. His engineering achievements as the director of America's Jet Propulsion Laboratory have been documented extensively, but he was also a significant leader in the engineering community.

The William Pickering Award for Engineering Leadership (sponsored by the IPENZ Foundation) recognises an engineer who has demonstrated outstanding leadership, and is a role model for other engineers. Judging is according to the following criteria:

- development of his/her career to achieve leadership positions
- demonstrated ability to develop, articulate and implement visionary change benefiting New Zealand
- contribution to community or other activities outside employment
- peer and wider recognition in relevant communities
- demonstration of high standards of ethical and personal behaviour
- commitment and contribution to the development of others, especially young people.

The Award consists of a medal and a certificate.

Entries and all supporting material must be received by 5.00pm 1 July 2010.

Online indication of interest and entry to the awards will be available soon via www.nzeeawards.org.nz/

Questions can be directed to enquiries@nzeeawards.org.nz
